MISS EXOTIC

What up, witches?! Fall's officially upon us, and Miss Exotic Oregon 2025 is finally here! This year, Miss Exotic is bigger than it's ever been before, with a total of eight qualifying rounds! What's more, it now boasts the largest cash prize in the pageant's history!

It all kicks off at Kit Kat Club on Friday, October 4! Please see page 16 for all the dates and locations, and let's make this year's pageant a memorable one! That all starts with your support, cheering on the industry's elite performers during their journey to The Finals on Black Friday (November 29) at Dante's! Let's gooooo! 🍷🍷

THE P-TOWN HAPS

It's time for industry birthdays, and we have four such soirées for you this month! We'll start with Kaleah's Coyote Ugly Birthday Party at Dream On on Friday, October 11. Next, we have Bunni's Western Birthday Bash at Hawthorne Strip and Carmelita & Brooke's Birthday Party at Lucky Devil Lounge—both on Saturday, October 12. Last (but absolutely not least), it's Lux's Unholy Birthday Party at Devils Point on Saturday, October 26. Help all these lovely ladies celebrate by buying them a birthday shot! Happy Birthday from Exotic, Kaleah, Bunni, and Lux!

And with that, it's on to other industry events, and you already know most of them are of the spooky variety! Stars Cabaret in Salem is the first to kick off the ghastly get-togethers with Fright Night on Saturday, October 19, complete with creepy cocktail specials. As always, if you join the festivities and arrive in a costume, you get in free! If you can't make it to Salem, they're giving you a second chance on Halloween proper at their Bridgeport location. Don't miss out!

For the one event this month that isn't Halloween-related, we got something for the ladies! HUNKS, the #1 Male Dance Revue, will visit Stars Cabaret in Salem on Sunday, October 20. Ladies, grab your besties for the perfect girls' night out!

Wanna switch it up and party at a lingerie shop? You'll get just that chance if you visit PDX Barbies on Friday, October 25, for their Barbie Halloween Party. Check out their ad on page 7 for all the details!

Next, there's a very special show and Halloween celebration at Bossanova Ballroom on Saturday, October 26. Former Miss Exotic Oregon, Phoenix Rising, is at it again with her presentation of Sanctified, a Halloween Dance Party with go-gos, vendors, and a full helping of debauchery. Scope their sexy invitation on page 8! See you there!

Wrapping up this month's events is, like...every other industry Halloween party! Take a deep breath and try to follow folks. There are Halloween Costume Parties at The Lounge, Union Jacks, and Cheetahs XXX Cabaret (in Salem) on Saturday, October 26, and Cabaret, Lucky Devil Lounge, and Union Jacks on Halloween proper (that's Thursday, October 31 for those of you on your fifth gimlet). Oh, and Lucky Devil Lounge will have their Zombie Strippers in full force that night!

Bat's all, folks!

BY WOMBSTRETCHA THE MAGNIFICENT

THE WORLD'S WORST COCKTAILS

Cocktails, mixed drinks, whatever you want to call these mixtures of flavor and alcohol—typically, people make cocktails in an effort to provide a flavorful experience, but sometimes, things go wrong. Very wrong.

I'm collating a list of the worst things anyone could care to imbibe and, if possible, why they visited these beverages upon the public. The sad truth is that most of the time, you have to pay for the privilege of being given an awful swig of disgust, but I suppose that if you can get away with it, then why not? Now, cocktails are a storied tradition of getting people hammered without them barking at the sharp bite of straight liquor, and there are many fine and delightful beverages one can consume that both satisfy and intoxicate. We are not exploring those. For every weird but wonderful drink, as a French 75 (a mixture of cane syrup, gin, lemon juice, and champagne), there are some utterly foul things that people have designed and consumed. Let's take a look!

Ranked in no particular order, but think twice before ordering any of these.

Horse Jizz

Yeah, it's called that. It's 1 part beer and 1 part milk, mixed together in a sturdy glass mug and downed by the most determined of lactose-tolerant boozehounds. I cannot find much information about the provenance of this drink, but it seems to have originated as a joke in New England, according to my diligent research. However, I must suggest that if you care to research this for yourself, make sure you use the keyword "beverage" or "drink" in the search, or you are going to see things you do not wish to see.

Infected Whitehead

Doesn't that name just provoke you into delight? Here's the breakdown. It's 1 part vodka, 1 part bloody mary mix, and a 1/2 part of cottage-fuckingcheese. Sounds just heavenly. Stir those together, and you get something that looks like a cancer patient's vomit. Down the hatch! No refunds! They got the name right, though. It quite seriously looks like something that should not exist, let alone be consumed. I am getting some kind of vibe that the bartender on duty had been sampling their product...for like a year.

Sourtoe

This is kind of an odd one, as you can't really make it at home. In the Sourdough Saloon in Dawson City, Canada, they make this very specific drink. It gets weird here. The story behind this is that in the '20s, a pair of bootleggers who were brothers were running sauce down over the border, but one of the Linkin brothers got his foot frozen as he trod through the ice. His brother, being of keen mind, thought to chop his thoroughly frozen toe off with an axe. The toe was stuck in a jar of alcohol, as they were hooch runners, and it lived in the shack they had sheltered from the cold. Come some 50 years later, in the mid-1970s, a man called Captain Dick Stevenson ostensibly found the toe jar in the old shack. He had a great idea as a result: "I'm gonna put it in booze and make people drink it!" He started a drinking club, and the rules for admission, in his words, were, "You can drink it fast. You can drink it slow. But your lips must touch that gnarly toe." And it gets even weirder! In 2013, someone at the bar ordered the sourtoe, but he ate the toe! On purpose! He was subsequently beaten with sticks and ran out of town... no word on if they beat the toe out of him.

Prairie Oyster

I know what you're thinking. When you hear the term "prairie oyster," you think of the Midwestern delight, which is bull testicles in sauce. Not so in this case, but that doesn't mean it's better. You have to understand that the prairie oyster cocktail has no nuts involved but is instead comprised of a raw egg (yolk unbroken) with Worcestershire sauce, vinegar, and salt 'n' pepper. It is supposed to taste like an oyster shooter, but according to witness accounts, it tastes like a pickled abortion in a shot glass. Invented in Texas in the 1890s, it apparently served the needs of people who clearly had no idea what an oyster actually tasted like. They might have been better off just using the bull testicles.

The Bloody Tampon

Already, I am sure you must be thinking, "What the absolute fuck, and why would anyone ever order such a thing?" This is a solid question. Why people might order them is a matter of personal taste, but why it was invented, my research has failed to find. So what is it? Buckle up. It's a cocktail composed of Bailey's, vodka, lemon juice, tomato juice, tequila, and whiskey. Does that sound like anything anyone without a death wish would ever desire to consume? Pro tip: no, it is not. I did find out roughly where it got its start, but not why. It originated at a bar in Texas, to the best I could find out in my research. Why is Texas doing this to us? It may never be known. Nevertheless, it reminds me of the trick you play on alcohol noobies when they turn 21, and you tell them you're ordering cement mixers.

La Puta

Yes, this means "the hooker," or at least "the ho," depending on context. It's a Spanish term for ladies of loose morals and applied instances of vaginas for purposes of commerce. As we're all fans of those here, we'll proceed with what the drink is. It is a substance crafted from tequila, Tabasco sauce, and the juice from an entire can of tuna. It has been said to either be the worst thing in the world or, alternatively, the world's best hang-over cure. Still not sure why tuna juice made it in there, but we get to lay the blame surely on Mexico at this point. Originating in border towns and tourist resorts, I have a sneaking suspicion that they were thinking, "Okay, what can we get these fuckers to drink?"

The Smoker's Cough

This one...this is certainly a thing. Is it a good thing? I'm going to subjectively say "no." You may disagree, but let us discuss the key components, of which there are two. Jägermeister and mayonnaise. Don't look at me like that! I am not in any way responsible for this. The proper serving of this one is a shot of Jägermeister, topped with a thrilling, heaping spoonful of mayo. Down the pipes it goes! It may, perhaps, come back up by the same channel.

So, we see that the depths to which you even think you can sink have been subordinated. You can drink all the booze you want, but these items are here to wreck not only your day but possibly even your sanity. I'm no stranger to the sauce, but I'm not going to put any of these on my "let's get a drink before we see a movie" list.

Enjoy life, and don't drink these unless you really want to make a bet with your stomach as to who can tolerate it all.

UNDERSTANDING & PREVENTING OVERDOSES

Except for suicides, overdose deaths are always accidental. The word “overdose” has sometimes carried a moral judgment that the individual was “pushing their limits” in order to get as high as possible, as if it were their own fault.

This is not true. “Overdose” simply means taking too much of a drug and it is always accidental. Even daily opioid users who know that fentanyl is in their product have no way of knowing the amount.

Instead of blaming others, let’s work together to end accidental overdoses.

LAST THOUGHTS OF THE DEARLY DEPARTED

BY HANNAH ONE CUP

As human beings, we feel it's our birthright to be given a proper death, or at least one that didn't catch us off guard. Say, for instance, being hit by an oncoming bus or colon cancer. Both were completely preventable, yet somehow they happened and now you are where you are today, roughly 6 feet deep in the ground, hanging out with worms and bugs and maybe Aunt Carol.

[Side Fact: About 75% of colon and butt cancers can be prevented or at least not kill you. This usually requires you to get the scope up your butt. I highly suggest doing this at the right age (I mean...you could do it before, but...why?) You also get good drugs during the procedure. I would know. I worked in GI.]

In those instances, you don't really have time to plan out your last thoughts or sentiments. You are taken completely by surprise and, instead, are flooded with a jarring reminder that you left the oven on—and also, it doesn't matter anymore because...oh crap, you're dying, and it feels weird what's about to happen?!

[Side fact: People have died leaving their slow cookers on. However, the causes of death were not ultimately determined to be caused by the slow cooker being left on, and probably thanks to good PR, the makers of said crock of pot state that their slow cookers are safe to use. So, keep those babies on all day if you are like me and want your roast falling off the bone. Damn the man and whoever says you can't eat brownie batter because of raw eggs. They're just trying to keep you from good-tasting things. And maybe, a rare death. Maybe.]

Death by surprise is not something we can prepare ourselves for. There is absolutely no way to tell if a bald eagle is going to drop a turtle on your bald head, thinking it was a rock that day. Your last thoughts will probably be mundane, just as these folks' were, so putting too much thought into what you plan to say to people before you die is somewhat pointless since you won't really know when it happens. Don't prepare for anything.

[Fun legend: Greek playwright Aeschylus'

death was apparently caused by a bald eagle dropping a turtle onto his shiny, bald head, thinking it was a rock. There was a picture of this drawn by an artist, who had most likely intended for this to be placed on stained glass. Now that is leaving a mark on society and possibly assisting other bald men in making sure to watch over their heads or to keep their heads covered, at least.]

I decided to go into what may be some people's final thoughts before being sent to the great, unknowing void without time to prepare proper send-offs and hate letters to those they care for and wish ill will on.

Stacey, 39 – Killed by a tall, unsecured bookshelf falling onto her when attempting to reorganize her shelves after having one of her friends tell her that it was organized poorly – “This is absolutely not happening. I knew I should have placed this shelf where I could find a stud in the wall...I just didn't wanna do the work. Fuck, I hope I look smart with all my books organized correc...”

Terry, 44 – Killed by an oncoming bus while trying to get to his job, going over why people in the city should consider the bus the safest method of transportation. Terry had never taken a bus himself. – “Oh my god... isn't it ironic...I hate that song, ahh!...”

Jack, 22 – Whale watching with his girlfriend, who he was looking forward to banging on a boat, he wanted to see if he could touch the killer whale's fin, fell overboard, and was picked up by a shark – “She's going to be so impressed when I touch this wha---oh fuck it's slippery, Jesus I'm falling, I hope we have sex after thi---fuck, what the...a real shark? Jaws? Ow! Can I have sex with one leg---”

Gayle, 37, and Todd, 42 – While walking outside of her apartment, Gayle had a successful (accidental) suicide attempt occur from the 14th story of her complex. Todd landed on Gayle, doing them both in simultaneously – Gayle: ‘I wonder how many carbs are in bagels compared to donuts. I'd simply die if I was allergic to carb---’ Todd was at that moment thinking: ‘I didn't want to fall, I wanted to...fuck... lady! This is so stup---’

Jeremy, 26 – Tired and cold, coming home from a 14-hour day at the spaghetti factory, placed a bowl of leftover chili in the microwave but forgot to remove the tinfoil covering it. After seeing a fire start, he immediately opened the microwave and was blasted in the face with hot chili and tinfoil, which caused Jeremy to run out of the house to put snow on his face...forgetting about the hard ice outside his door. Tripped on the ice and hit his head. His cat ate his chili. – “Hormel chili is better than Olive Garden, but not their breadsticks. I should feed the cat. Oh shit, the foil...fuck, my face! Oh my god, cat, don't eat my face, snow...yeah snow, oh shi...ice...Ah---

At the end of it all, there is really no dignified way to go, and very rarely are there going to be significant last words or thoughts. I, for one, don't really care what my last thoughts or words are. I hope to be extremely high on a specific cocktail of...supplements and to be left out in someone's backwoods to be found years later, eaten by wolves, on a murder mystery show. More than likely, though, I'll probably end up catching hypothermia from keeping my window and fan running even during the wintertime when I'm 94 years old. I don't want to live to be 94, but my family genes unfortunately point to the fact that we just don't want to die, even after heavily imbibing in alcohol and smoke.

Last thoughts on last thoughts, don't think too much about it, and enjoy the weirdness life is offering you now. If you're really curious, I guess it's that time of year to whip out your Ouija board and ask the dead people (hopefully people) what their last thoughts were before they passed. I'm certain they are just as uninteresting as the provided examples, but go ahead and spend your time asking.

Hannah One Cup can be found on Facebook by her name, as well as TikTok: @thursdaynight_depression. This Halloween, she plans on not thinking about last thoughts but maybe visiting a few graveyards. She'll probably also enter a costume contest and lose because no one understands her references. As someone once said in a forgotten sci-fi film, "You're Mickey Mouse is one big, stupid dope."

WHAT PORTLAND NEEDS MORE OF

By Blazer Sparrow

I realize I'm super late to the game on this issue, but here's another fucking Portland article about Live Nation's quest to build a "mid-sized" venue on the Central Eastside of the Willamette River. We were recently told by the Lord of Exotic to avoid local politics, and I feel like I'm flirting with the edge here, but rest assured I'm not picking a side.

Whether Live Nation should build another fucking venue on the east bank of the Willamette or Monqui and Anschutz build a similarly sized venue in the Lloyd Center (if you want to build something there, please reference my genius suggestions in the July 2023 issue), I really couldn't care less—I mostly want to know what the fuck a "mid-sized" venue is? I'm ashamed to say I always assumed that shit like Crystal Ballroom, Roseland, and Revolution Hall was "mid-sized," and then a "small" venue would be like the original Doug Fir Lounge (only 300 capacity! For some reason, it always felt bigger). Regardless, apparently, these Portland favorites are considered "small." A "mid-sized" venue holds closer to 3,000 attendees.

Live Nation's proposal would hold 3,500 standing. I guess I just don't understand what the "gap in the market" is that both sides are referring to. The first thing you notice when you move to Portland is that every artist comes to Portland. Who is skipping Portland, which has a draw between Crystal Ballroom and Moda Center? The last time Japanese Breakfast came through, they just did that thing where they cut Moda Center in half and called it Theater Of The Clouds. At the height of Modest Mouse's powers, at the Portland kickoff of the "Good News" tour, they just played five consecutive nights at Crystal Ballroom. I fail to see the gap they're referring to. Keller and the Schnitz hold about 3,000, but I guess that doesn't fill this magical gap cause it's sitting room only. What about Edgefield? If you want something bigger, we have Ridgefield north of the border (they could fit Alanis Morissette in there).

Okay, fine. Those are all outdoors, so maybe the super specific niche gap is something the size of Keller but is standing-room only. I scoured the internet to see what acts Portland is missing out on and saw some names thrown around, like LCD Soundsystem, Beck, and Wilco. I call bullshit; I guarantee this city can find a way to host these "mid-sized" acts.

I recently biked by the lot that Live Nation has its eye on to develop into this gap-filler. I heard one pretty convincing argument against it due to its proximity to the train tracks. Can you imagine a "mid-sized" venue-worth of traffic pile-up behind the tracks? Build a venue off the MAX line. What's going on with that vacant land off the southwest bank, right next to the Tilikum Bridge?

Feel free to send your hate mail my way to prove me wrong and explain why we need another fucking music venue at all. In the meantime, here are some other things we could build on that vacant lot, snugly tucked between the train tracks and the river.

Another Fucking Craft Brewery

There's clearly a market gap in 100-capacity breweries that exclusively serve cask ale and are family friendly until 10 p.m. Clearly, we need to build another brewery to meet this unmet demand in the market. Where are families who only like cask ale going to go in Portland? They're gonna just drive three hours to Seattle to go to Machine House. We must solve this and build another brewery in Portland to fill this gap. Although several breweries in Portland offer some exclusive cask ales and several others are family friendly, and there is definitely overlap, I think this warrants building a completely new brewery. Look at the gap.

Another Fucking Weed Store

One thing I've noticed since the legalization of weed in Oregon is that I will sometimes drive six whole blocks without seeing a weed store. Outrageous. This is not only legal but necessary for some of us who unironically call it "medicine." If there isn't a weed store on every corner of every block of this city, how can we, as an urban community, sleep at night? Literally how? We need it to sleep.

Another Fucking Strip Club

I don't want to hear about statistics like Portland having more strip clubs per capita than any other city—or that there are twice as many strip clubs as there are public restrooms—or that there is literally one strip club for every 9,000 residents of this city. There's definitely a gap in the market for a pescatarian strip club. We have a steak house strip club and a vegan strip club, and everyone reading this knows I'm not making this up, but what about the market demand for people who only eat fish? Hey! It would also have a great view of the river if we built on that lot. I promise I'm not pitching this just so I have another distribution spot for my journalism.

Another Fucking Food Cart Pod

You might say that Portland has every conceivable base covered in terms of food cart pods, from indoor to outdoor, to hybrid, to ones with firepits, to ones with movie nights, to ones attached to beer gardens. Well, you would be wrong. There is a gap in the market for food cart pods that are located between industrial train tracks and a river. We must act quickly to fill this extremely specific gap in the market and build a food cart plaza between industrial train tracks and a river. Please hurry.

Another Fucking Karaoke Bar

If Kelly's Olympian lost its main talent buyer due to the venue trying to move towards more karaoke nights, it clearly shows that there is still unmet demand in the market. Understandably, this city does not have enough karaoke clubs. If you've ever waited to have your name called, you'll know how serious this problem is. Jokes aside, rather than building a new karaoke club, is there any way we can just bring back Boiler Room on NW Davis? Asking for myself.

ALIEN

By Ian Sellwood

ROMULUS

Greetings, my fellow nudity enjoyers and cinephiles. After repeatedly sending my peer-reviewed and workshopped film reviews to everyone's favorite local adult entertainment magazine, it appears the editor finally decided to give me a chance and put my words to print. While it's still not clear why it took them so long to respond to my monthly queries, what is clear is the noticeable lack of film-centered content in this publication. I'm here to finally change that! It seemed appropriate to have a rather scary feature for the October edition, so strap in and grab some lube.

Spoilers Ahead

The Alien series has always been rooted in sex. The original 1979 horny horror masterpiece relished in sexual anxiety. It very purposefully played with penetration, impregnation, and lots and lots of phallic-shaped things, not to mention fluids galore! Even without the written-but-not-filmed sex scene between Ripley and Dallas, the original movie includes plenty of titillation that anyone with an imagination can crank it to. You even get some decent shots of the ship's porno collection, plus Sigourney Weaver's skimpy final girl outfit at the last showdown. Sucks she couldn't convince the studio to do the scene nude like she originally wanted to. Stupid prudes. I thought the '70s were supposed to be sex-positive.

The franchise, unfortunately, took a rather chaste turn for the next few movies, with none of the titillating scary boners that made the original great. The weird fourth one by that weird French guy did have that hot foot rub scene, but it wasn't nearly long enough to get the nut off. Once Ridley Scott decided to wrestle the franchise back, we saw some good gratuitous banging scenes in both Prometheus and Alien: Covenant, but these felt like shoehorned-in PG-13 sex scenes.

I was hoping that with Alien: Romulus, which touted a "return to form" vibe of the original, we'd also see a return to the confused boners that made the original great. Not so! And forgive me for thinking we'd finally get some proper monster-on-girl erotica from the trailers. I've never felt more cock-teased.

This movie had all the raw materials to outdo the original in terms of scenes you don't want your parents to walk in on. Instead of a bunch of working-class grunts, we got a bunch of lusty, drunk youngins trying to break into a government facility! I mean, come on, Fedel! You're leaving money shots on the table there. I should've guessed after watching his remake of Evil Dead. His reinterpretation of the super hot tree branch scene lacked that forbidden spark that made the original scene so jerk-worthy.

Now, don't get me wrong, there is some stuff in here that gave me at least a half-chub. Finally, we get an Alien movie that actually graphically depicts the facehugger's weiner thing throat-fucking someone. But most of these scenes were from the trailer. Didn't see anything more. Just a little treat for hardcore horny Geiger fans. Not enough to nut, but maybe when it comes to Netflix, you can get some good pause frames.

The final girl does have her little underwear scene homage to the original, but it's much shorter and even less revealing than Sigourney's. We don't even get any buttcrack or bush that had to be airbrushed out above the panty line. I mean, they basically remade the last scene, so you might as well use it as an opportunity to right the wrongs of the horny police in the '70s. If we don't get to see our final girl naked, we could at least get some overgrown pubic hair bustin' out of her panties. I mean, this thing is literally stuffed to the brim with references to the original film; why not go metareference and also help us get off at the same time?

The biggest disappointment for me was the pregnant gal. Once the character (I forget her name) mentioned she was pregnant (from her cousin, no less!), I got my tissue and lotion ready. I thought, hell yes, we got an incest preggo cutie, a bunch of penis monsters, and a motivation to outdo the 1979 franchise debut? Let's go! But, no dice. I was so let down... no graphic birth scene or even a quick shot of some vag. I was so mad that I chucked my box of tissues at the usher, who asked me to zip up my pants. I got a little excited when she touched what I assume were her lactating breasts (off-screen, of course) and pulled up some milky gray substance. I thought, okay, here it is, two hours of waiting, and finally a show-stopping confused boner masterpiece. I got up and picked up my box of tissues despite the protests of the rest of the theater attendees. We even have the rip-off of the weird French one smiling at lactating mama. Nothing. We cut away, and next, we see the pair—he's biting her neck or some horseshit. What, he's a vampire now?

Once again, I'll need to wait for the porn parody of this one on Digital Playground.
